Clinician: Grant McKinney, Prairie Wind Stables

Grant has been involved with horses most of his life in one way or another. Growing up in the Edmonton area, he competed in gymkhanas and local horse shows as a child until 1979 when he decided to make a profession in the horse industry. He has worked for and with several different top trainers in all aspects of riding from Western Pleasure, Reining and Cutting to the English disciplines of Jumping and Dressage as well as the world of Gaited Horses.

In working with all these different trainers, Grant has come to understand the one thing that all these disciplines have in common is a need for a good foundation in the starting of all horses. He owns and operates Prairie Wind Stables at High River, Alberta where he concentrates on the starting of young horses and working with problem horses of all sizes, types and disciplines.
